Historical Context of Fall From Grace

Fall From Grace was written during a time of great political and social upheaval in England. The play reflects the anxieties and fears of the Elizabethan era.

The play was first performed in 1606, just two years after the Gunpowder Plot. The Gunpowder Plot was a failed attempt by a group of Catholic conspirators to blow up the Houses of Parliament and kill King James I.

The Gunpowder Plot was a reminder of the dangers of political and religious extremism. Fall From Grace reflects these fears and warns against the dangers of unchecked ambition.
