Bobby Orr was the most dominant defenseman in NHL history. He was a gifted skater and puck-handler, and he revolutionized the way defensemen played the game. Orr was the first defenseman to regularly join the rush, and he was also one of the best scorers in the league. He won the Norris

Trophy as the NHL's top defenseman eight times, and he was inducted into the Hockey Hall of Fame in 1979.

Gordie Howe was one of the most complete players in NHL history. He was a great skater, shooter, and passer, and he could play any position on the ice. Howe was a member of the Detroit Red Wings for 25 seasons, and he helped the team win four Stanley Cups. He was inducted into the Hockey Hall of Fame in 1972.

Maurice Richard was one of the most popular players in NHL history. He was a gifted scorer, and he helped the Montreal Canadiens win five Stanley Cups. Richard was also a controversial figure, and he was often involved in fights with opposing players. He was inducted into the Hockey Hall of Fame in 1961.

Jean Beliveau was one of the most respected players in NHL history. He was a great skater and passer, and he was a natural leader. Beliveau was the captain of the Montreal Canadiens for 10 seasons, and he helped the team win 10 Stanley Cups. He was inducted into the Hockey Hall of Fame in 1972.

The Ice Kings were a group of pioneers who changed the game of hockey forever. They were great players, but they were also innovators who helped to make the game faster, more exciting, and more popular. Hard Checked is a must-read for any fan of hockey history.
