The novel begins with the bombing of Pearl Harbor, an event that forever changes the lives of everyone in Hawaii. In the aftermath of the attack, a group of young people from different backgrounds come together to form a resistance movement. They are led by a charismatic young Hawaiian named Keawe, a Japanese-American woman named Hana, and a white American man named Jack.

As the war rages on, Keawe, Hana, and Jack must overcome their differences and work together to protect their island home. They face danger at every turn, but their courage and determination never waver. Along the way, they also find love and friendship in the most unexpected places.
