

The Presidents of the French Fifth Republic: French Politics, Society, and Culture

The French Fifth Republic was established in 1958, following the collapse of the Fourth Republic. The new constitution created a strong presidency, with the president being elected by universal suffrage for a seven-year term. The president is the head of state and government, and has the power to appoint the prime minister and dissolve the National Assembly.

The presidency has been a central institution in French politics since the Fifth Republic was established. The president has played a key role in shaping French foreign policy, domestic policy, and cultural life. Some of the most notable presidents of the Fifth Republic include Charles de Gaulle, François Mitterrand, Jacques Chirac, Nicolas Sarkozy, François Hollande, and Emmanuel Macron.
