Max and Billy went over to the robot puppy and asked him what was wrong. The robot puppy told them that he wanted to escape the robot. He said that he didn't like being a robot. He wanted to be a real dog.

Max and Billy felt sorry for the robot puppy. They decided to help him escape the robot. They knew it would be difficult, but they were determined to do it.

Max and Billy went to the library and did some research on robots. They learned that robots are made of metal and wires. They also learned that robots need electricity to work.

Max and Billy came up with a plan to help the robot puppy escape the robot. They would use a magnet to attract the metal in the robot's body. This would cause the robot to short-circuit and shut down.

Max and Billy went back to the park and found the robot puppy. They placed the magnet on the robot's body and waited. A few seconds later, the robot short-circuited and shut down.

Max and Billy were overjoyed. They had helped the robot puppy escape the robot. The robot puppy was so happy to be free. He thanked Max and Billy for their help.

Max and Billy and the robot puppy became best friends. They played together every day. The robot puppy was finally able to live his dream of being a real dog.
